Printed on a one-pull press

The satires are divided into four books. Each satire has a single-line argumentum by Guarinus Veronensis. Probably set from Zarothus’s edition of the same year (Juv019), though BMC considers it to have been set from the 1474 Zarothus edition (Juv013) which does not however have the incipit in uppercase. The present edition has the same number of leaves, though the text itself occupies two leaves fewer. The incorrect adjective ‘Arpinatis’ at the head of the Juvenal is now corrected to ‘Aquinatis’.

BMC notes that the line beginning ‘Ac resupina iacens’ in Satire VI has been omitted.

The Register is unsigned. In the Bodleian copy it appears to have a conjugate blank.

The British Library, Bodleian and BNF copies have regular pinholes in the outer edges of each leaf which suggests that the book was printed on quarto half sheets on a one-pull press.
